

Labour Market Information (LMI)

Labour Market Information (LMI) can be quantitative or qualitative data about the nature and operation of the labour market. It can show you what sorts of employment opportunities exist in your area and which sectors are growing.

There is a huge amount of information about LMI, the following would be useful places to start:

National Careers Service Jobs Profiles – cover almost 800 jobs and include information on entry routes, wages, hours and work activities: <https://nationalcareersservice.direct.gov.uk/job-profiles/home>

Prospects – is a careers website aimed at graduates and undergraduates. It is a good source of LMY, including those considering higher education: <https://www.prospects.ac.uk/>

LMI for All – is an online data portal, which connects and standardises existing sources of high quality LMI: <http://www.lmiforall.org.uk/>

I could – uses the LMI for All data along with personal careers stories to help young people explore career routes and pathways. There are over 1,000 different video clips: <https://icould.com/>

World Skills UK Careers Cloud – allows pupils to explore the very latest labour market information related to the jobs that they specifically match with. Highlights include unemployment/ pay by region, UK labour market projections, skills shortages: <https://worldskillsuk.org/careers-cloud>

Get in Go Far – this is a Government portal for information about apprenticeships. As well as being used to find vacancies to apply, it can also help young people to research the availability of opportunities, wages and entry requirements locally: <https://www.getingofar.gov.uk/>

Careers of the Future – The aim of this publication is to inspire young people about the wide range of jobs that are out there:
